1. Introduction

The research shows that the human and geographical system of the western Ukrainian borderland is the organizational product of modern religious life. In particular, the study of spatial aspects and distribution of major religions, faiths, denominations and religious organizations as well as the functions of higher and secondary religious educational institutions including Sunday schools (see Сретий, 2015).

The western Ukrainian borderland includes the following six administrative oblasts: Rivne, Volyn, Lviv, Transcarpathian, Ivano-Frankivsk and Chernivtsi. Their share is 18.4% of the territory and 16.0% of the population.

The national education system of Ukraine is organized into three levels, each of them performs its inherent educational objectives. The first level is comprehensive. It comprises children of 1–17 years old who attend pre-school, regular schooling and after-school education. They get a basic understanding of key subjects, physical education and aesthetic development. The second level involves training. It comprises young people from 17 to 25–28 years old. This is made up of three groups of institutions: a) vocational schools that train professionals; b) universities of the I–II level of accreditation (technical schools, colleges) that train specialists in general and special education; c) higher educational institutions, the III–IV level of accreditation (universities, institutes, academies) where students carry a full course of education and receive a bachelor’s degrees (basic higher education) and masters (complete higher education). The third level is a post-graduate education and it depends on the requirements of professional training and retraining as labor conditions require, which in turn provides further training for the need of the community as the labor markets require in whatever particular sectors of economic activity.

In 2015/2016 academic year, Ukraine had 659 higher education institutions, including 371 institutions of I–II level of accreditation, 288 institutions of III–IV level of accreditation and 16900 secondary schools. In the western Ukrainian borderland, the situation is as follows: 118 higher education institutions (17.9% of the Nationwide Index, NI), these include 74 institutions of I–II level of accreditation (19.9% NI), 44 institutions of III–IV level of accreditation (15.3% NI) and 16900 secondary schools (27.6% NI) (Державна служба…).

Religious education in the western Ukrainian borderland is a subsystem of religious infrastructure that includes 84 missions, 59 academic institutions and seminaries (33 high and 26 medium) and 5601 religious schools (four secondary and 5597 Sunday schools). Religious organizations produce 133 periodicals, including 76 articles, 21 audio-visual (radio and television) and 37 various electronic methods (Звіт про мережу церков…. 2016). There are also other religious publishing houses as well as various church enterprises.

The subject of our geo-cultural analysis is the religious education of the western Ukrainian borderland. Religious organizations in this region, remains the goal of higher and secondary religious educational institutions including Sunday school.

Human-geographic research of religion, particularly religious education in Ukraine was conducted by such scientists as I.I. Rovenchak, (Ровенчак, 2008), J. Sutton (1994), O.I. Shabliy (Шаблій, 2000), L.T. Shevchuk (Шевчук, 1999) and others. They established the basic foundational principles of spreading religious beliefs and establishing their respective institutions; they also identified geospatial-core centers of religious life, reasonable flows of pilgrims and tourists; identified the territorial aspects of sacred infrastructure; expressed the territorial differentiation of religious life within their historical and geographical backgrounds.

Such scholar as O.G. Kuchabskiy (Кучабський, 2000), V.O. Patiychuk (Патійчук, 1998) and others, addressed the organization and functioning of religious education in Ukraine’s various regions. The results of their study confirms the differences within regional education and functional levels of religious schools, seminaries, academies, as well as their territorial location according to the distribution of various denominations.

In 2016, the total number of religious organizations within the religious network of the western Ukrainian borderland are 30.7% of the National Figure, NF; 23.4% are missions (NF); 43.4% are monasteries (NF); 29.8% are religious educational institutions (NF), 25.6% of which are higher (NF) and 37.7% are secondary (NF); 46.0% are religious schools (NF), 50.0% of which are general (NF) and 46.0% are Sunday schools (NF). Religious organizations issued periodicals 27.5% of the (NF), 23.1% of which were printed (NF), 72.4% are audio-visual (NF) and 27.8% are electronic (NF) (Tab. 1.) (Звіт про мережу церков..., 2016).

The first public schools which exist in Ukraine now, were in the care of the church and priests being the teachers. In the second half of the ninth century, almost every cathedral had a school that produced new educators for the government. When the sixteenth century began, church ‘brethren’ began to create communal schools and ‘fraternal’ organizations. In 1592, Lviv Dormition Brotherhood, which is also called Stavropiglyzka was established. Similarly other ‘fraternal’ organizations began to emerge throughout the western Ukrainian borderland, in Rohatyn, Tysmenytsi, Lutsk, Volodymyr-Grand, Komarno, Galicia, Stryi, Nikolaev, Dubna and elsewhere. In 1580 Ostroh Academy was founded in the Rivne oblast.

In 1783 the Lviv Theological Seminary was founded and in 1804–1918 Studiyum Ruthenium were established. At Lviv University Theological faculty existed, for both denominations Greek Catholic and Latin. Also, Seminaries began to develop in Przemyśl in modern Poland (1912), Stanisław in Ivano-Frankivsk (1907) and Prešov, in modern Slovakia (Федорів, 2007).

In 1928–1929, Metropolitan Sheptytsky founded the Lviv Greek Catholic Theological Academy, which consisted of two faculties, Philosophy and Theology, and Yosyp Slipyj became rector. After the closure of the Academy in 1944 its mission and functions were resumed its operations December 12, 1996.

For the faithful of the Roman Catholic Church in Bryukhovychi, Lviv Oboist, there exists the Higher Seminary of the Lviv Archdiocese. It was originally founded in 1703, when the Cathedral Seminary was created. In 1783 an Austrian Order in Lviv created the so-called General Seminary for all Galician dioceses, and in 1814 Lviv, the seminary separated from the General Seminary. In 1945 the Lviv Seminary was moved to Kalwaria Zebrzydowska, Poland, and in 1950 the seminary was eliminated. Seminary resumed its operations December 12, 1996.

2. The description of religious educational sphere in the western Ukrainian borderland

Geospatial analysis of the western Ukrainian borderland, will be conducted by such indicators as high and medium religious schools, the number of attendees daily and forms of publications; religious schools, which include Sunday schools. Also taken into account performance of religious schools, missions, monasteries and clergy periodicals.

The territorial distribution of religious educational institutions were primarily associated with the historical context of religion in Ukraine and particularly in the western Ukrainian borderland, and the necessity to meet the needs of the faithful. In total there are 58 religious educational institutions of which 33 (25% senior and 25 middle). Most of them in Lviv (32.8% of the western Ukrainian borderland indicator, WUBI) and Ivano-Frankivsk oblasts (19.0% WUBI). Lowest is in the Transcarpathian (10.3% WUBI) and Rivne oblasts (10.3% WUBI). Higher amounts of religious educational institutions are in Lviv (39.4% WUBI), Ivano-Frankivsk oblasts (33.3% WUBI). The smallest are in the Volyn oblast (3.0% WUBI). The average level of accredited religious educational institutions are larger in Volyn (28.0% WUBI), Lviv (24.0% WUBI), Ivano-Frankivsk (20.0% WUBI), Transcarpathian oblasts (16.0% WUBI) and the lowest in Chernivtsi oblast (4.0% WUBI) (Fig. 1). Higher levels of religious educational institutions are not uniform in distribution, both in regions and in confessions.

The density of religious educational institutions to community, has a number of interconnectedness of religious schools and religious communities. The average ratio of religious schools to the region is 5.5 institutions/communities. The highest density is in Ivano-Frankivsk oblast, 8.3 institutions/communities, which is associated with one of the highest concentrations of religious schools to a small number of communities in the region. The lowest density is in Transcarpathian oblast. 3.3 institutions/communities which explains the large number of religious communities, a small area and a small number of religious educational institutions.

Christianity is the leading religion of the population in Ukraine. In the western area, the Orthodox Church is dominant. The most common religious organization is the Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate). It is estimated to have 2560 religious organizations (23.3% of the region), nine departments, 2468 communities (23.5%), 68 monasteries (30.4%), one mission (1.2%), seven religious schools (11.9%), one higher level education (Volyn Theological Seminary (Lutsk)) and six secondary schools, where 713 students are enrolled. The employees of the church consist of 2438 clergy, including three abroad. Religious organizations: 22 printed periodicals, 12 other printed material, four electronic and six audio-visual.

In Ukraine, the past 90 years of the last century, popular nationalist ideology, caused a national restructuring and regaining control of the government. We believe it was necessary. During this period, Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Kyiv Patriarchate) and the Ukrainian Autocephalous Orthodox Church united under one name, the Ukrainian National Orthodox (Ровенчак, 2008).

The composition of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Kyiv Patriarchate) in this region include 1786 religious organizations (16.3%), 9 administrations, 1,740 communities (16.6 %), 23 monasteries (10.3%), 4 missions (4.8%), 8 religious schools (13.6 %), five higher level (Volyn Orthodox Theological Academy (Lutsk), Lviv Orthodox Theological Academy (Lviv), Rivne Seminary (Rivne), Ivano-Frankivsk Theological Institute (Ivano-Frankivsk)), School of Philosophy and Theology of the Yuriy Fedkovych Chernivtsi National University (Chernovtsi) and three secondary schools, where 536 students are enrolled. There are about 1423 caretakers of the church which includes clerics, of which one serves abroad. The religious organizations produce 16 periodicals, five print material, four electronic and seven audio-visual.

The total religious organizations is 184 (1.7%), 4 centers, 2 governing boards, 166 communities (1.6%), 2 missions (2.4%), 2 middle religious schools (3.4%) attending 40 students. Church affairs are cared by 235 priests, including 11 abroad. They produce 12 periodicals, including 9 print, 1 audio-visual and 2 electronic.

Judaism includes United Jewish Organization of Ukraine (Transcarpathian, Ivano-Frankivsk, Lviv and Chernivtsi oblasts), Progressive Judaism (Volyn, Transcarpathian, Lviv and Chernivtsi oblasts), The Association of Chabad Hasidim Lubavitch Jewish Organization of Ukraine (Volyn, Rivne and Chernivtsi oblasts), Other Jewish religious organizations (Transcarpathian, Lviv and Chernivtsi oblasts). Total religious organizations is 44 (0.4%), 44 communities (0.4%). Affairs of the congregation cared by 28 rabbis, including 9 abroad. One print material and one electronic periodical.

Besides the above mentioned religions and faiths represented in the territory they are few in the area, and their number is not very large and does not affect the overall situation in the region. These are the religious organizations: Protestants, Islamic, Buddhists, Ukrainian Diocese of the Armenian Apostolic Church, among the new ones are the Pagans, Oriental, and all others.

The density of religious schools/priests, depends on the number of schools, clergy, and community and religious schools. Medium density indicator within the western Ukrainian borderland is 5.02. The highest density in the Volyn oblast – 8.3, the lowest is in the Ivano-Frankivsk oblast – 1 (Fig. 4).

The next and equally important figures of religious schools, are the ones in general and the Sunday schools. Their number in the region is 56017, most of them are in Lviv oblast (2054, 27.4% regional) and the lowest in Ivano-Frankivsk oblast (285; 3.8%). In the western Ukrainian borderland are four general religious organizations, namely the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church in Ivano-Frankivsk (1. “Spiritual School” the Metropolitan Sheptytsky), Lviv (2. UC School Gymnasium, St. Sophia) and one, the Ukrainian Union Conference Adventist Church in Lviv.

Religious schools in the western Ukrainian borderland structure consists of Ukrainian National Orthodox – 794 (55.0% of the NP of 1443), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 1734 (85.3%; 2033), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 1185 (32.0%; 3707), Protestants religious organizations – 1723 (39.1%; 4401) and other – 165 (27.7%; 595). Historically the church influenced the western Ukrainian borderland, and it is because of this, it is most numerous. Ukrainian National Orthodox is very traditional Ukrainian, so it takes the lion’s share (Tab. 2.)

In distributing Religious Schools there is a pattern, where there is a greater number of specific religious denomination, there is a higher number Religious Schools of the same confessions. In the Volyn oblast structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 197 (24.8% of the region), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 14 (0.8%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 402 (33.9%), Protestants religious organizations – 375 (21.8%) and other – 28 (17.0%). In the Transcarpathian oblast structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 8 (1.0%), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 137 (7.9%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 520 (43.9%), Protestants religious organizations – 310 (18.0%) and others – 80 (48.5%). Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) and Protestant religious organizations prevails in this area, we can explain it this way, first – they are remnants of former forced imposition of the “right” religion; second, the rapid spread and influence of something new in the nation.

In Ivano-Frankivsk oblast structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 66 (8.3%), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 141 (8.1%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 2 (0.2%), Protestants religious organizations – 34 (2.0%) and other – 4 (2.4%). In the Lviv oblast the structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 385 (48.5%), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 1436 (82.8%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 25 (2.1%), Protestants religious organizations – 103 (6.0%) and other – 1 (0.6%). Art historically formed an important feature among highly religious population.

In the Rivne oblast structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 121 (15.2%), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 4 (0.28%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 196 (16.5%), Protestants religious organizations – 432 (25.1%) and others – 22 (13.3%). In Chernivtsi oblast structure is as follows: Ukrainian National Orthodox – 17 (2.1%), Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church – 2 (0.1%), Ukrainian Orthodox Church (Moscow Patriarchate) – 40 (3.4%), Protestants religious organizations – 468 (27.2%) and other – 30 (18.2%). This situation is the result of the impact of new trends in society and influence of Protestant religious organizations from neighbouring oblasts to the east.

3. Summary
Geographical study of religious education is now at the primary level in Ukraine, it requires deeper study. The historical aspect of the development of religious education in the western Ukrainian borderland existed a very long time and has been a significant part of the development – from communal schools to famous universities – Ukrainian Catholic University.

We have analyzed territorial extension of religious educational institutions and religious school in the western Ukrainian borderland enables organizations and it enabled us to make the following conclusions: 1) the density of religious educational institutions is linked to the number of priests and religious communities; 2) the higher religious educational institutions and secondary religious schools search their place in the system of education; 3) the location of religious educational institutions is due to historical development of religious confessions; 4) the location of religious school has its own pattern – where is the greater number of specific religious denominations, there is a higher number of religious school of the same denomination; 5) the density religious schools depends on the number of schools, priests, and community and religious educational institutions.
